

COACHING TEAM

JOSH FARR

Josh Farr graduated as a Civil Engineer and within 1-year made the shocking realisation that he'd picked the wrong career! Deciding to risk it all, Josh resigned his job and spent two-years traveling to 39-countries in search for a more fulfilling life. With a passport full of stamps but still lost, Josh realised he'd been asking himself the wrong question; instead of, "What will make me happy?" he started asking, "What can I do to serve others?"

Josh returned to Australia to work in education and non-profits with Teach For Australia and TEDxMelbourne before discovering the power of social-entrepreneurship. In 2017, Josh founded Campus Consultancy and has since taken more than 2400 student leaders from 21-universities through his workshops on leadership, entrepreneurship and emotional intelligence to help them build their own thriving, connected student communities that focus on doing social-good.

He's delivered a TED talk for TEDxUniMelb and will deliver a 2nd for TEDxMonashUniversity in 2019. Josh created and presents the Deakin University Pre-Accelerator unit, lectures the University of Melbourne 'Social Enterprise Incubator' course and is an Entrepreneur in Residence at #StartWest supporting early-stage entrepreneurs and social-innovators in Melbourne.

To learn more about Josh, connect with him on LinkedIn, or visit his website

JENNI METCALFE

Jenni Metcalfe is a trained biology/science teacher, with a combined degree in journalism and audio-visual production techniques. She has been working as a science communicator since she joined CSIRO in 1989. From late 1995 Jenni has been operating the science communication consultancy, Econnect Communication. She loves to: find, tell and share people's stories; help scientists use the right communication strategies to truly engage people; and train and mentor scientists and others involved in science to communicate. She is passionate about facilitating positive changes to people's lives and the environment they live in. Jenni's vision is to 'bring science to life'.

To learn more about Jenni, connect with her on LinkedIn, or visit her website

GREG MILLS

Greg Mills is the Principal Consultant of GoAhead Business Solutions and an expert in social licence in Australian agriculture. With extensive experience in agricultural and natural resource education, government and policy development, and the construction of welfare codes and reviews, Greg is regularly sought-out for advice on how to navigate a changing and challenging agricultural future.

In 2009, 2011 and 2013 Greg was presented with Certificates of Recognition in the Australasian-Pacific Extension Network Awards for Excellence in Extension. In 2017 he was awarded the Kondinin Group and ABC Rural Consultant of the Year. In 2019 Greg's contribution to education and teacher professional development in the red meat sector was recognized through the Mintrac Training Initiative of the Year award.

Greg's passion is helping people, especially young people in agriculture, build an awesome future. He specialises in building consumer trust in farmers and the modern food system, creating constructive conflict and facilitating change.

To learn more about Greg, connect with him on LinkedIn

GAYE STEEL

Gaye Steel is a senior executive armed with 25 years marketing experience. She takes a pragmatic approach to drive robust strategic thinking into executional excellence. With a solid track record in achieving outstanding results Gaye has held a number of key senior management positions with organisations including Reckitt Benckiser, McDonald's Australia, Telstra, National Foods, Church and Dwight, and the McGrath Foundation.

Gaye is an accomplished Academic Lecturer in the field of marketing, branding, customer experience, corporate social responsibility and business strategy. Most recently lecturing at the exciting start-up Academy of Entrepreneurs and for the Business Faculty at Torrens University, Guest Lecture Master of Business Administration (MBA) Corporate at The Business School University of Wollongong, having previously spent 11 years with Macleay College.

Currently completely an MBA Gaye is passionate about realising personal, professional, and business growth through learning and development. Gaye combines marketing expertise with facilitating and inspiring individual, group and organisational growth.

To learn more about Gaye, connect with her on LinkedIn